Rolled ankle is a common basketball injury

If you have ever played or watched basketball, you are probably familiar with an injury known as a “rolled ankle.”

A rolled ankle, also known as a sprained ankle, occurs when the ligaments in your ankle are stretched or torn, often due to a fall or twist.

It is common in basketball for players to land on the foot of another player when coming down from a shot or rebound attempt — landing on an uneven surface and resulting in a player suffering a rolled or sprained ankle.

Dr. Kelly Krei,
MercyOne Genesis board-certified sports medicine specialist

Symptoms

- Pain
- Tenderness
- Swelling
- Bruising
- Stiffness

To treat a rolled ankle, you can try the RICE (rest, ice, compression, and elevation) method for the first 24 hours:

- Rest: Limited weight bearing and stop any activity.
- Ice: Apply ice for 15–30 minutes, 3–4 times daily to reduce swelling.
- Compression: Use a bandage or ace wrap to support and immobilize your ankle.
- Elevation: Keep your ankle raised above your heart as much as possible.

When to seek medical attention

You should seek medical attention if you experience sharp pain, swelling around your ankle, inability to ambulate, or prolonged symptoms. A doctor can perform a physical exam and order X-rays or an MRI to check for ligament injuries and other concerns.

After the initial swelling and pain go down, you can try these treatments:

- Range-of-motion exercises
- Stretching exercises
- Strengthening exercises
- Physical therapy.

A complete tear or break may require surgery.

When can I get back on the court?

If you have an ankle sprain, you must take some time off from sports and other strenuous physical activities. Make sure your sprained ankle is wholly healed first.

You can go back when:

- Full strength
- Full range of motion
- Full confidence

Can I prevent a sprained ankle?

It's impossible to prevent all ankle sprains. But these tips can make another one less likely:

- Stretch regularly to keep your ankles flexible.
- Do ankle range of motion and strengthening exercises to keep your muscles strong.
- Always warm up before playing sports, exercising, or other physical activities.
- Watch your step when walking or running on uneven or cracked surfaces.
- Don't overdo things. Being tired can make an injury more likely.
- Use tape, lace-up ankle braces, or high-top shoes to support the ankle.
- Wear shoes that fit well. Tie any laces and close Velcro or other straps to make the shoes as supportive as possible.

Reminder

Refrain from doing things is key when it comes to sprains. Follow your doctor's advice and avoid pushing yourself or feeling pressure to get back into sports or other activities too soon. Sprains usually heal well, but they need time to get entirely better.

IN MEMORY: Steve Tappa, 1966–2024

By Tom Johnston
Dispatch-Argus/Quad City Times

Meticulous.

Gregarious.

Never on time.

And, of course, always pushing deadline.

That is how I will remember long-time sports writing compatriot and friend Steve Tappa.

My former colleague and 3 a.m. club member for 20-plus years passed away at home in the early hours of Tuesday morning. The Bettendorf High School and St. Ambrose University graduate left us at the all-too-young age of 58.

He packed about 120 years of activities and events into those years.

He was an award-winning writer for The Dispatch/Argus, starting as a part-timer while in school at SAU before shifting to a full-time position in January of 1989.

It is the second time in just short of a year that a colleague — both named Steve — has passed.

This one, though, hits differently.

Tappa and I were usually the last ones out of the office most nights/early mornings, forming a close bond that was never broken. Being younger (and dumber) than me, he usually out-last-ed me when it came to calling it a night.

In fact, Stevie rarely called it a night. For him, working at least two jobs in the early days of his career, meant lots of all-nighters and morning naps to try to rejuvenate for the next all-nighter that loomed and the never-ending list of tasks that awaited.

He was a marvel at burning the candle at both ends — living on what affectionately became known as “Tappa time” — but it caught up with him over the years.

While he could be infuriating when it came to turning a story on deadline, his attention to detail was always appreciated.

If you needed a statistic or piece of historical information, Stevie had it — either tucked away in his grey matter or filed away somewhere in a stack of paper or computer file. The man loved his record-keeping whether it be for work or the fantasy football and baseball leagues he was part of or ran.

"Steve Tappa is one of the most diligent and knowledgeable sportswriters in the state of Illinois," surmised Dan Tomlin, a mutual friend and former fellow sports writer describing our friend. "He is looked upon with high regard and is always a source of information, guidance and opinion."

"He is an award-winning sportswriter with an incredibly fun and easy-going style that comes through in his work."

That was our affable "Tappa the Hut." He tackled every job with zest. How he gave 100-percent to the multitude of projects he was always involved in was baffling. Maybe that was why he was always dragging, but still never leaving a detail dangling.

His dedication to whatever task loomed could never be questioned — even when he put the job ahead of his own health and well-being. Worrying about others more than himself was part of his DNA. So was shaving in the newsroom with his electric razor (when he remembered to charge it) and wearing shorts year-around.

I will never forget the 2016 John Deere Classic. In the heat of August that year, in typical Stevie fashion, he lumbered into the media center ready to plug away at another day of award-winning coverage.

We joked that he didn't look great, and he admitted that he must have felt as bad as he looked.

Before he could unpack his suitcase (actually his oversized briefcase stuffed to the brim that he slung over his shoulder), he listened to advice to get out of there and head home. Three days later an incredible medical journey began that included multiple heart and brain procedures.

He stoically battled through all of it and, of course, kept working whenever the doctors and nurses would let him. Nothing could keep him down as his work was always a priority. He never wanted to let down his professional teammates in what he called his "dream job."

He stayed the same right through to the end. If something needed to be done, you could count on Stevie to handle it even if it meant his own projects were pushed to the back burner.

Out of college, Stevie juggled his Dispatch/Argus responsibilities with duties at KALA radio at SAU, leading to many sleepless nights. For the last 20 years or so he has kept the BPV baseball league running and fulfilling his other passion of coaching — including mentoring sons

Michael and AJ.

After his full-time duties with the paper ended, he picked up numerous freelance gigs that included journalism, website writing and editing along with radio and TV work, putting his mass communications background to good use throughout his storied career. He also was a valuable Associated Press resource, coordinating Illinois football and basketball polls and coordinating AP All-State teams.

Even though our professional lives hit a fork in the road a few years ago, our friendship never faltered. Many long phone conversations followed and text messages were frequent.

As was usual with me, I gave Stevie a difficult time the last time we texted with each other. I joked that he missed having to put up with my crap on a daily basis.

His response was simple, yet poignant: "Dunka," he wrote regarding the information I shared with him. "And yes, miss you terribly."

Now it's my turn to miss him terribly.

Mercyone Genesis Shootout

HISTORY

2023: The 29th annual Genesis Shootout was a day that will be remembered for a terrific triple overtime battle and some lopsided numbers that led to the widest win margin in the long-standing event's proud history. For the second time at the Genesis Shootout, the :35 shot clock was approved for each game and just like in 2022, it didn't have much of an effect on the games. The Iowa side schools won by a margin of 21 points enroute to winning the first four games of the event, eclipsing 2022's 20 point Iowa win margin. Davenport Central had no issues running past Alleman in game one 72-37, as the Blue Devil defense caused 16 Pioneer turnovers. Maddox Sullivan grabbed 11 rebounds and Carter Light had 13 points for Central. Davenport North jumped on Geneseo in game two and led 17-2 after the first while having three Wildcats with double digit points for a 53-30 North win. Davenport West held Galesburg to 35% field goal shooting in game 3, for a Falcon 75-39 win. Idris Thomas led all scorers at the event with 24 points for West. Eventual class 3A Iowa state champs Assumption had three players score double digits, including Navon Shabazz's 16 points to help the Knights take down UTHS, 71-46 in game four. Lucas Austin of Sterling had 16 points, including 4 of 5 from the three-point line, to go along with 13 rebounds as the Golden Warriors outlasted Bettendorf for a 57-53 win in the first close game of the day. But the highlight of the day was a heated triple overtime thriller from Pleasant Valley and Rock Island, as the Rocks won 70-69. KJ Lamonte's buzzer-beating heroics at the end of the first overtime, sinking a thrilling 3-pointer, kept the Rocks alive in just the second ever triple overtime game at the Genesis Shootout. Dezmond Jackson was 6 of 9 from the three-point line for Rock Island. Jackson and Pleasant Valley's Coy Kipper led their respective teams in scoring with 20 points each. The excitement didn't carry over to the last matchup of the day as Moline stormed out to a 23-4 lead after the first quarter, cruising to a 61-40 win over North Scott. Treyvon Taylor scored 24 points and tallied 8 rebounds for the Maroons, as Jamarion Readus paced the Lancers with 18 points.

2022: Genesis celebrated its 15th anniversary as the event's presenting sponsor. The experimental 35-second high school shot clock was used for the first time, with the Illinois High School Association approving the use to match the rules Iowa teams began playing by during the 2022-23 season. Despite the shot clock, this Shootout fell 19 points shy of the highest scoring year in event history. Instead, with the first two games decided by 45 and 39 points, respectively, this became the biggest blowout (20 points per game) on the recordbooks at the annual bragging right battle. This Shootout also set a standard with three teams scoring over 70 points in a game (18 total now in event history with Davenport North, United Township and Sterling all eclipsing the mark in wins). Alleman also broke its year-old record for lowest score by a team with 20 points in a loss. Iowa kept winning bragging rights thanks to Bettendorf edging Rock Island in the final minute of the closest game of the day (59-54). Bettendorf's Division I college recruit Caden Wilkins scored 28 points (2 from becoming the 8th 30-or-more scorer in Shootout lore) and teammate Asher Wade missed tying the single-game rebounding record by 1 (finishing with 18). Sterling's Andre Klaver (27 points) also just missed the scoring mark despite a 21-point first half. Additionally, United Township's Omarion Roberts posted 9 assists — one from tying the Shootout record. The marquee matchup featured a pair of current University of Iowa players in Moline teammates Owen Freeman and Brock Harding. Freeman's quadruple-double bid (10 points/12 rebounds/6 blocks/4 assists) helped the eventual Illinois Class 4A state champs to pull away late from Iowa Class 4A state semifinalist Pleasant Valley, 54-43. The 6 blocks tied a Shootout record.

2021: Augustana celebrated a 20th anniversary of hosting the event by having three former Shootout players make their head coaching debuts — Ryan Hill (Davenport Central), Marquez Davis (Davenport North) and Ryan Thompson (Galesburg). That nearly doubled the total of the event's alumni coaches to eight. Sterling also was added to the 14-team, 7-game mix, making a successful debut by beating Central. Records were set in the opener for most lopsided game (70 points), highest scoring team (Davenport West 94 points) and lowest scoring team (Alleman 24 points). That nearly doubled the biggest blowout previously (37 points) and the Falcons topped the scoring record by 14 points. Coupled with a 36-point decision in Game 3 of the day (Davenport North over Geneseo), that helped this Shootout rank as the most lopsided in history (19.57 average) despite featuring four games decided by 7 points or fewer. This Shootout just missed being the highest scoring, though, by a mere 4 points. Moline edged North Scott, 58-51 in a main event featuring teams ranked 10th in their respective state's initial Class 4A polls. However, Pleasant Valley holding off a furious Rock Island comeback in another meeting of state-ranked squads sealed another series victory for Iowa.

2020: The 27th version of the local Christmas-time tradition was forced to postpone with Illinois schools unable to play sports because of state government-mandated, COVID-19 restrictions. Illinois schools were eventually allowed to play a truncated six-week season with games limited to local jurisdictions in February and March of 2021.

2019: Geneseo's Colorado State-bound Isaiah Rivera padded his lead in career scoring at the Shootout with the day's most dominating line — a 31-point, 10-rebound, 4-assist effort to finish with 97 points in four games — oddly, all of them losses. Rivera was kept winless in Shootout history by a record-setting 80-point explosion from Davenport Central in the highest-scoring game ever in event history (combined 146 points). Davenport West also scored 74 points in a win over Alleman to rate among the 14 teams now to ever score 70 or more points in a Shootout game. The fireworks added up to the highest-scoring Shootout ever at 789 combined points, an average of 56.3 points per team. The earliest date ever used for a Shootout (Dec. 14) also saw Iowa take a 76-74 lead in all-time games by scoring a 6-1 win over Illinois — the fifth straight victory in the series for the Hawkeye state.

2018: Iowa celebrated the Shootout's 25th anniversary by pulling off the first sweep since the field expanded to seven teams from each side of the Mississippi River in 2010. Bettendorf delivered the coup de grace in the featured finale, rallying past Rock Island with a fourth-quarter comeback, 56-47. Bettendorf's Ohio State-signed star D.J. Carton finished with 21 points, 9 assists and 5 rebounds, with 9 points and a thunderous dunk coming in the deciding run. The Hawkeye state also claimed a battle between Top 5 state-ranked conference leaders when North Scott and Cortaviaus Seales remained unbeaten on the season with a 59-47 decision over Moline. Davenport Central also set the event's scoring record (79 points) and tied another mark (with a 37-point blowout) in racing past Alleman. A pair of players from the Illinois side did their best to grab headlines, though, as Riverdale's Carter Wainwright and Geneseo's Colorado State-bound Isaiah Rivera each scored 33 in losses, coming up a point short of the event's individual scoring mark. Illinois had the only other sweeps in 1996 — when only four games were played — and in 1994, when the event started with a three-game format at The Mark of the Quad Cities, now Vibrant Arena at The Mark.

2017: Iowa claimed the cross-river showdown for the third straight season with a 5-2 win in the head-to-head matchups highlighted by only the second 3-0 day for the Davenport Public Schools. West and North also joined the short list of teams scoring 70-or-more points in the Shootout. Galesburg also scored the event's second-biggest blowout ever, with a 36-point win over Bettendorf, which was missing Carton because of injury. The breakout star was West's Trey Sampson, who's 26 points were the most of the day and led the Falcons to only their second win ever in 24 Shootouts, a 30-point decision over Geneseo.

2016: United Township All-Stater Tray Buchanan hit a last-second 3-pointer to make the Panthers a 50-48 winner over Bettendorf in the featured nightcap. The thrilling game-winner allowed the North Dakota-signed senior to eclipse the Shootout's single-game scoring record with 34 points and helped UT break a tie at 13-9 with Bettendorf for the event's winningest school. Despite those fireworks, Iowa schools scored a 4-3 victory over their Illinois counterparts, with Galesburg tying the record for lowest-scoring output, managing only 27 in a 17-point loss to Pleasant Valley.

2015: Augustana celebrated a 15th anniversary as host of the backyard bragging rights battle. New Assumption coach the fifth player from the Shootout's past to graduate into a head coach at the event. By winning six of seven games, Iowa scored the largest victory in event history up to that time. Despite that edge, only the 14th 20-point decision on record prevented this from being the closest Shootout ever, with Moline falling to Central, 68-48, without injured star Andy McLaughlin.

2014: Only UT (61-48 victim of Pleasant Valley) and Alleman (51-36 loss to Davenport North) failed to register victories in a 5-2 victory for Illinois. The highlight was Rocky's 51-49 comeback victory over North Scott, with future NBA G-Leaguer Tyler Hall scoring a game-high 25 points in the state-ranked showdown. The spotlight finale drew a standing-room only crowd and featured four major-college recruits — including the North Scott trio of Marlon Stewart (Creighton), Cortez Seales (North Dakota) and Grant Graham (Northwest Missouri State). Riverdale also edged Central, 65-64 in the curtain-raiser, for the seventh one-point thriller in 21 seasons. Cole Solomon's 26 points led the way for Riverdale and topped all scorers on the day.

2013: Four days before Christmas, the event celebrated its 20th anniversary, with the Hawkeye state unwrapping a second consecutive win in the seven-game format. The victory came despite West remaining winless in 20 shootout starts. Assumption alum Joe Ewen became the fourth former Shootout participant to also serve as a head coach in the event as Davenport North's rookie boss. Also notable: Geneseo and Moline played two games with travel, with both also involved in DeKalb's Chuck Dayton Holiday Tournament. Geneseo started at the shootout and ended a long day in DeKalb while Moline pulled the opposite shift up-and-down Interstate-88. Bettendorf's Iowa-bound Nicholas Baer (25 points) and West's Michael Evans (19 rebounds) shined individually.

2012: Iowa won the event for the first time since 2004, though a 4-3 victory could have been even bigger. Assumption was edged by Rocky, 61-60 in only the second finale (and fifth Shootout game ever) settled in overtime. Alleman also rallied to top Davenport West in a 66-64 thriller. The Mississippi Athletic Conference used victories by three unbeaten powers to forge one of the most-lopsided Shootouts in history. All four Iowa wins were by 10-or-more points, led by North Scott's 32-point victory over Galesburg — the second-biggest victory in Shootout history. Iowa's wins were led by promising college recruits such as Bettendorf junior Cole Clearman (26 points), and North Scott sophomores Cortez Seales (16) and Grant Graham (17).

2011: Western Big 6 Conference heavyweights UT, Rocky and Moline won the final three games of the night, giving Illinois its fourth straight victory over crossriver rival Iowa, and in comeback fashion, too boot. Moline's victory was the capper, coming against Assumption in a battle between the top two teams in the QC Prep Basketball Power Poll. UT also claimed a Shootout-best 13th win. Riverdale All-Stater Wes DeClercq enjoyed the biggest highlight, though, scoring a Shootout-record 32 points in Illinois' only other victory.

2010: West remained winless in 17 Shootout tries, falling in the fourth overtime contest in event history to fellow tournament founder Moline. The victory was part of four straight wins by Big 6 teams to end the day. Future NBA point guard Chasson Randle scored 13 points for eventual Class 3A state title-winner Rock Island in the featured finale, a 67-41 blowout of North Scott. The 10th anniversary of Augustana hosting the event also saw Riverdale and Pleasant Valley make successful Shootout debuts as the event grew to include 14 teams for the first time.

2009: The pre-Christmas tournament's "Sweet 16" birthday bash included Stanford coach Johnny Dawkins in attendance to watch his prized recruit, Rocky's Randle, post a 24-point, 11-rebound double-double. That effort led to a 76-52 runaway victory over Central in the featured nightcap, and a 4-2 Shootout win for Illinois.

2008: With State Farm pulling its funding two months before tip-off, Genesis Health System jumped into the title-sponsor role at the last minute. On the court, UT's rookie head coach, Marc Polite, became the third Shootout player to also serve as a head coach in the event, though his club fell despite a monster 27-point, 11-rebound effort by future overseas pro Kannon Burrage.

2007: A triple-overtime classic and founding member Moline's return helped mark the second tie in Shootout history. Moline ended a five-season hiatus by replacing Orion, then edged Assumption by three points. That thriller got trumped, though, by the marquee matchup between major-college recruits — AAU teammates Tyler Storm of Geneseo (Northern Illinois) and L.A. Pomlee of Central (Iowa State). Central pulled out the 64-61 decision in three overtimes. Alleman also memorably won without head coach Steve Smithers, who missed the game for the birth of his first grandchild. Assistant Mike Crawford piloted the Pioneers past North.

2006: A couple of sponsors backed out late, but the Shootout was again a success at Augie, especially for the Illinois schools, which earned a 5-1 decision in the head-to-head matchups. The highlights included tiny Orion's one-point decision over North Scott, with Kramer Matzen hitting a 12-foot, buzzer-beating floater for the win. That ruined the Shootout coaching debut of Shamus Budde, the second player-turned-head coach in event history.

2005: With North Scott and Orion added, the Shootout expanded to a six-game format, ending in a 3-3 tie for the first time. Bettendorf forged the shared bragging rights by edging Rocky, 54-52, in a thrilling finale. Alleman also prevented the 400th career victory of North Scott's Dave Wessel, with the former West coach falling to a head-scratching 0-12 in Shootout action. Behind new title sponsor State Farm Insurance, the participating schools each earned $1,800, then an event-high. The sophomore portion of the tourney moved to Rock Island High School.

2004: Bettendorf eventually won Iowa's Class 4A state title — but suffered its lone loss of the season in the Shootout finale, 38-35 to Lance Young-led Alleman. The Hawkeye state still won bragging rights behind wins by three Davenport schools — Assumption, North and Central. The latter victory came in a wild one-point decision over UT, with future NFL lineman Austin Howard fouled on a desperation in-bounds heave, before ignoring a large and loud crowd to calmly sink a pair of game-winning free throws.

2003: New Assumption coach Duffy Conroy, a former standout player for the Knights, became the Shootout's first playing participant to also serve as a head coach in the event, albeit in a losing effort. New Central coach Mike Reid, a former assistant to his Hall-of-Fame father Duncan at Rocky, also failed to beat his alma mater in the marquee matchup. Sophomore games moved from Augie's PepsiCo Center to Alleman's Don Morris Gym. McLaughlin Volvo and Southeast National Bank joined Swiss Valley Farms as presenting sponsors.

2002: With Moline coach Frank Dexter deciding to leave the event — wanting to play super-sectional competition if the Maroons were not playing on a super-sectional floor like The Mark — Big 6 foe Galesburg joined the five-team Illinois rotation for the first time. The Silver Streaks won, but Illinois still lost bragging rights for the fourth straight season. The UT-Bettendorf battle featured a return to Carver Center for former Augustana coach Steve Yount, with the new UT head coach matched against one of his former Vikings players, UT grad and new Bettendorf coach Kevin Skillett. North's future overseas pro Kyle Lamonte tied the Shootout's single-game scoring mark of 30 points in a loss to Galesburg. The event ranked as the highest-scoring shootout until 2019 with each team averaging 56.1 points.

2001: Economics forced the Shootout to move from The Mark (now Vibrant Arena) to Augie. Swiss Valley Farms became the title sponsor, and several other companies, including the Quad City Radio Group, threw their weight behind the event. The date also got pushed up to Dec. 15 — more than a week ahead of Christmas for the first time. The athletic directors at Alleman (Larry Schulte) and Bettendorf (Mark Brooks) are credited with behind-the-scenes work keeping the event going. Schulte the coach was rewarded on the court, with his Pioneers pulling out an overtime win over West. That was Illinois' only victory of the day, though, with Iowa winning the Shootout for a third straight season. Dubuque Wahlert also became the first school from outside of the Quad-Cities area to participate, with Central needing to opt out for a year because of a scheduling conflict.

2000: Nextel took over as the title sponsor, but the storm clouds continued to gather over the event's financial future. The third winter storm of the week didn't help at the gate, either, with the Shootout played despite the conditions canceling events locally a night earlier. On the court, Rocky's Hall of Fame coach Duncan Reid returned from a season-starting IHSA suspension to see the Rocks win. Nick Jones scored a Shootout-best 30 points to pace Rocky's 62-57 win over Central. Iowa won the event again, though, 3-2 with two-time defending state champ Assumption, North and Bettendorf winning games by a combined 15 points.

1999: Sprint PCS became the new title sponsor to keep the Shootout alive at The Mark. Suggestions continued to pour in, such as moving the event away from the final Saturday before Christmas, or perhaps to the first Saturday after New Year's, to help attract bigger crowds and keep the Shootout going. On the court, Assumption edged Rocky in a showdown of state-ranked squads in the event finale, giving Iowa a hard-fought 3-2 head-to-head victory. The closest Shootout in history included all five games decided by seven points or less, and a 5.4 average margin of victory. The event also remains the lowest-scoring shootout on record, with each team averaging 45.3 points. Helping that dubious mark was the lowest-scoring game in event history, with Geneseo edging West, 30-27.

1998: In the first overtime game in Shootout history, Bettendorf rallied for a 64-53 win over Alleman. Despite that thriller, 1998 still ranks as the most lopsided in Shootout history, with five games decided by a whopping 18.6 points. Pushing up that average was Assumption's 78-41 win over Geneseo, which set the standard for lopsided victories and a single team output for two decades. Off the court, officials express concern over the lack of money generated by the event for the participating schools.

1997: The event expanded to five games, with the inclusion of two of the oldest local schools, Rock Island and Davenport Central. Moline's Arizona-bound Traves Wilson, a night after becoming the Maroons' all-time leading scorer, equalled his Shootout-high 21 points from a year before. All of the sophomore games were moved off site for the first time. Citgo-Midway Oil took over as the presenting title sponsor.

1996: The event expanded to four games and moved to a Saturday-before-Christmas date. In the newest matchup, Alleman handled cross-river parochial-school rival Assumption to highlight a 4-0 Illinois sweep. With The Mark scheduled to host the first Illinois Super-Sectional in the Quad-Cities since 1967 later in the season, Lincoln Land also got a win by eventual Sweet 16 participant Moline.

1995: The Iowa schools scored a measure of revenge, winning two of the three rematches from 1994. Only United Township and its Eastern Illinois-bound star Marc Polite managed a win for Illinois. Another Friday night crowd of 4,000 enjoyed the varsity tripleheader. Local Chevrolet dealers were again the sponsors.

1994: The dream of Moline athletic director Mike Owens debuted on a Friday evening, Dec. 23, at Moline's year-old downtown civic center, The Mark of the Quad Cities. The three founding Illinois high schools (Moline, Geneseo and United Township) swept the Iowa trio (Bettendorf, West and North) in the first Iowa-Illinois Shootout. Sophomore matchups between the schools were played on site earlier in the day. UT and Polite topped defending Iowa state champ West in the initial varsity game. Geneseo also knocked off North and future NBA player Ricky Davis, a sophomore who had already verbally committed to Iowa. Moline and another future major-college player, Wilson, also beat Bettendorf and future North Scott coach Budde.
